

Law and Society Association of Australia and New Zealand (LSAANZ)

Annual Publication Awards 2019

The Law and Society Association of Australia and New Zealand (LSAANZ) will award three publication prizes each year. The prizes will be awarded for the most outstanding contribution to the field of law and society by an Australian or New Zealand scholar (whether by residence or birth) or whose work has a focus on these jurisdictions across three categories:

1. For a published scholarly book/monograph
2. For a published scholarly article or book chapter
3. To an early career researcher (ECR) for work nominated for consideration under (1) or (2) above.¹

The work must be in the broad field of socio-legal scholarship. As a guide, this does not include works that are purely doctrinal. In assessing this criterion, the following indicative points may be taken into account:

- Does it address the intersection of law and society?
- Does it engage with socio-legal literature?
- Does it focus upon both law and society

The publication must have been published in the 12 months preceding 30 June 2019. Note that if a person nominates a work that has been published online before 30 June 2019 (and the print publication occurs after 30 June), then that work is ineligible for submission in the following year as a print publication (i.e. you cannot submit the same work for consideration in different years).

The closing date for receipt of the nomination for all three prizes is 15 July 2019.

An ECR is a person who is currently enrolled in a PhD or has had their PhD conferred in the five years before 30 June 2019. An ECR may nominate their work for the dedicated book or article prize as well as being considered for the ECR prize. Where a work by multiple authors is nominated for the ECR award, the first named author should be the ECR and the subsequent authors not be senior scholars.

Edited collections are not eligible for the scholarly book/ monograph prize. Authors are however able to subject individual chapters for consideration under the scholarly article or chapter prize category.

A person is only able to submit one sole-authored work per award. It is however possible to submit more than one work where a person is a joint author (up to a total of two works – i.e. one sole-authored and one co-authored; or two co-authored works).

A person may nominate themselves for an award. If a person is nominated by someone else then it must be indicated that the person has consented to that nomination.

The book prize winner is expected to participate in an 'author meets reader' session on the published work at the annual LSAANZ conference held in November/December each year.

Each award recipient will receive a certificate and amount of $AUD200. The awards will be announced at the LSAANZ annual conference and publicized on the LSAANZ website. Award recipients will be informed of their award prior to the conference to enable attendance.

The scholarly book/monograph award winner is expected to participate in an 'author meets reader' session at the LSAANZ annual conference.

¹ All ECRs who nominate a book/monograph or journal article/chapter are automatically considered for the ECR award. It is possible for an ECR to win the book or article prize as well as the ECR prize.

Publication to be considered for:

- LSAANZ book/monograph prize
- LSAANZ article/book chapter prize
- I am an ECR and eligible for the ECR award

Please indicate if you are an ECR and eligible for the ECR award for work nominated under prizes (1) and (2) above. An ECR is a person currently enrolled in a PhD or who had their PhD award conferred in the five years preceding the 30 June 2019.

Please note that you may only submit one sole-authored work per prize, and up to two works in total per prize (i.e. one sole-authored and one co-authored; or two co-authored works).

Note that if a person nominates a work that has been published online before 30 June 2019 (and the print publication occurs after 30 June 2019), then that work is ineligible for submission in the following year as a print publication (i.e. you cannot submit the same work for consideration in different years).

The closing date for receipt of the nomination for all three prizes is 15 July 2019.

Author's
Agreement:

- I agree to the above cited book/article being nominated for consideration in one of the LSAANZ prize categories.
- If I am successful in being awarded the LSAANZ book prize, I agree to participate in an 'author meets reader' session at the LSAANZ annual conference in 2019.
- If I am successful in being awarded a publication prize, I agree to being available to assess nominations in my area of expertise in future years.

This nomination form, along with a PDF copy of the work nominated, must be submitted to lsaanzcomms@gmail.com on or before midnight on 15 July 2019.

All nominations will be assessed by a subcommittee of the LSAANZ Management Committee and, where necessary, by independent assessors. Prizes in each category are awarded for the most outstanding contribution to the field of law and society by an Australian or New Zealand scholar (whether by residence or birth) or to a scholar whose work has a focus on these jurisdictions. The decision of the LSAANZ Management Committee is final.

Nomination must have been published by 30 June, 2019. Complete entries must be submitted by 15 July 2019.
